Wesleyan College

ROPT

Macon, Georgia

Editor — MARY PIERPONT RILEY

Business Manager — NORMA FORD

Advisor — DR. THOMAS F. GOSSETT

Dedication

Nevertheless I dream my dreams and see my visions. I dream the dream of a college in which students and faculty work and play together for the sheer joy of the doing . . . I dream of a Wesleyan made great by the inner will of every member to work with others for a common goal.

Because there is one in our midst who inspires us to make his dreams a reality, the Senior Class of 1957 humbly dedicates this Veterropt to our beloved Dean . . .

Our Deans

Left: Mrs. Estes—or Mrs. "E."—smiles cheerfully as she performs her many duties as Dean of Women.

Below: No matter how busy they are, our registrars—Miss Winn and Miss Domingos—are always able to find time to help us.

Administration

Right: Always a help, Mrs. Hinton faithfully watches over the Conservatory—a constant reminder of Wesleyan's past.

Below: The College Hostesses, Mrs. White, Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Roberts, and Mrs. Zimmerman, enjoy a pleasant discussion with Dr. Hinson, the college chaplain.

Administration

Above: The Business Staff, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Buckner, Mrs. Camp, and Mrs. Corley, check accounts under the direction of Mr. Peden, business manager.

Left: The Secretaries, Miss Strohecker, Mrs. Villard, Miss Nicholas, and Mrs. Crawford, take a break from their busy day to enjoy the afternoon sunshine.

Administration

Above: The Public Relations Department—Miss Churchill, Mrs. Copeland, and Mrs. Kassner—plan the publicity for Wesleyan's next event.

Right: Mrs. Jones, the Alumnae Secretary, and her assistant, Mrs. Johnstone, look up from their work of keeping track of past Wesleyannes.

Administration

Left: Miss Carnes, Mrs. McGarrity, Miss Hoge, and Miss Lamon seem to be enjoying themselves as they pause on the porch of the Candler Memorial Library.

Below: Busy planning for a meal is the dietician, Mrs. Hurst, and her assistants, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Garrott.

Administration

Right: The nurses, Miss Lifsey and Miss Jones, stop a moment to talk to Mrs. Bennett, the Postmistress, and Mrs. Cunningham, the switchboard operator.

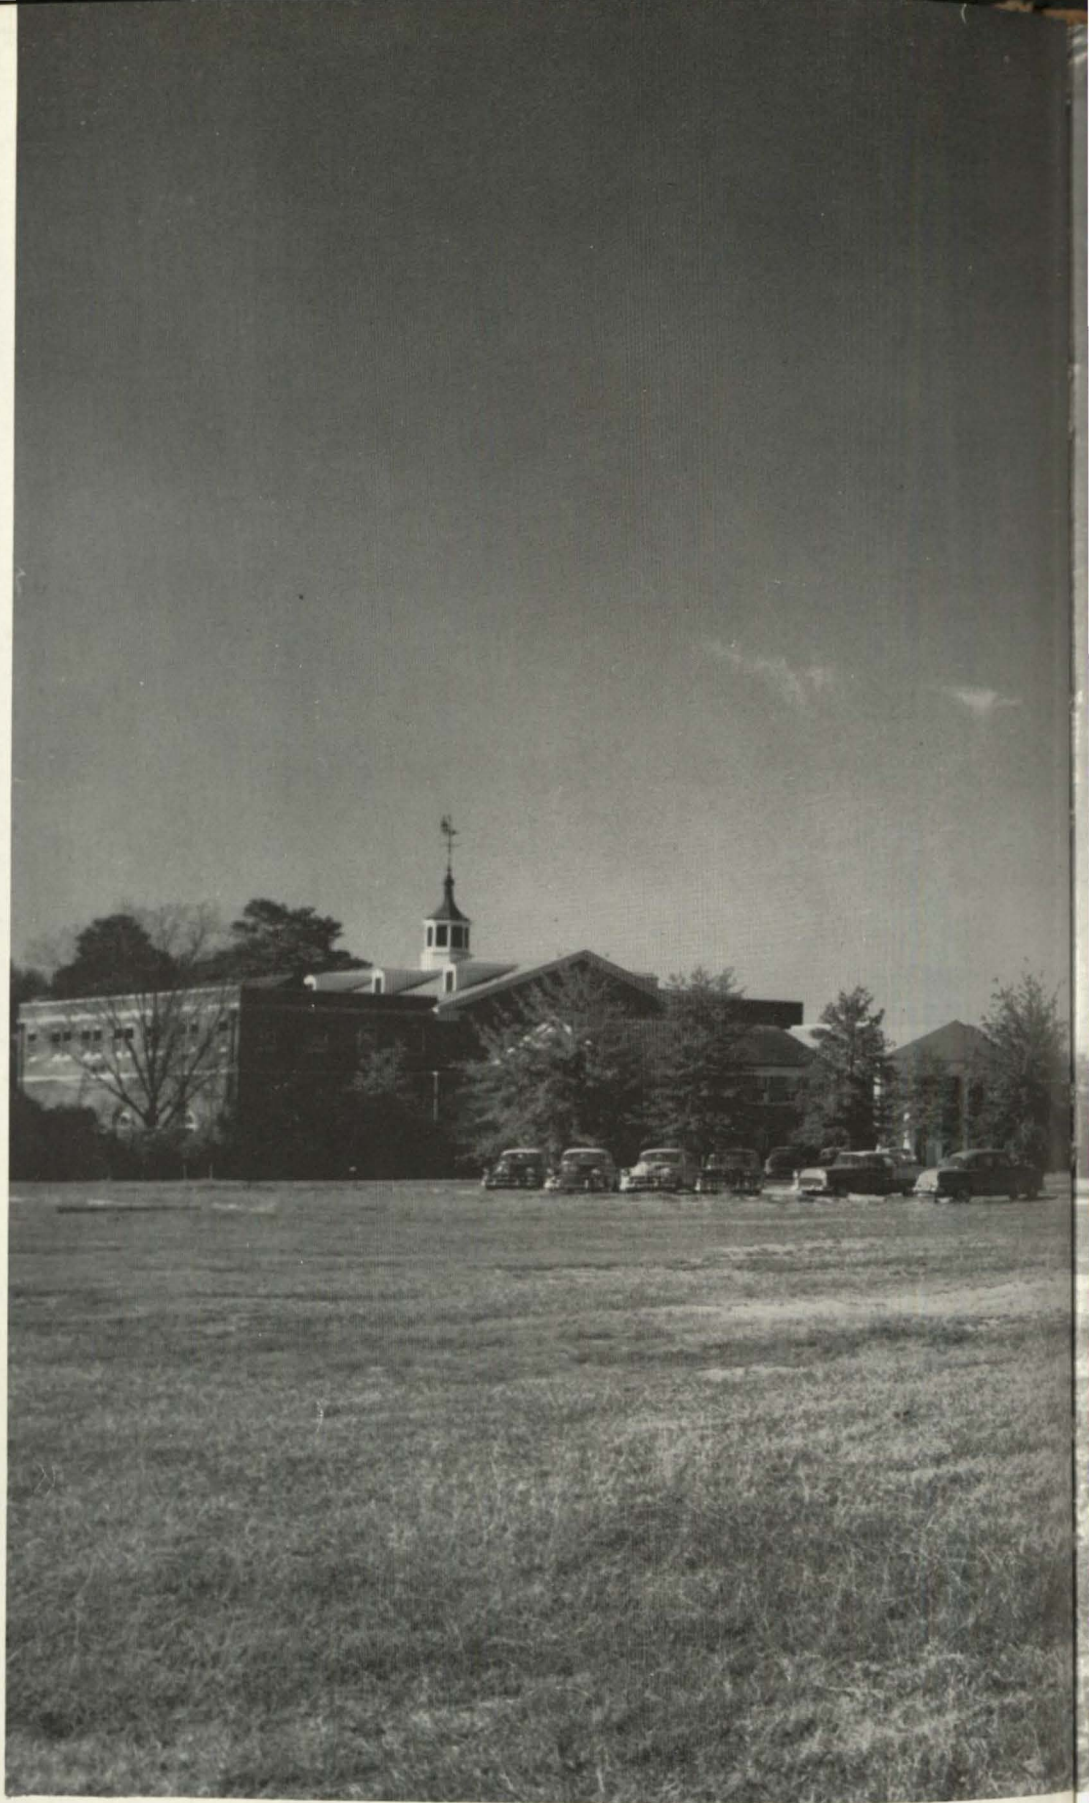

Below: Mr. Redmond, building supervisor, takes a coffee break with Mrs. Reese, student center director, and Mrs. Jackson of the bookstore.

ULTY

Above: The Art Department seems engrossed as Dr. Bosch and Mr. Bosch watch Mr. Gaines demonstrate a loom.

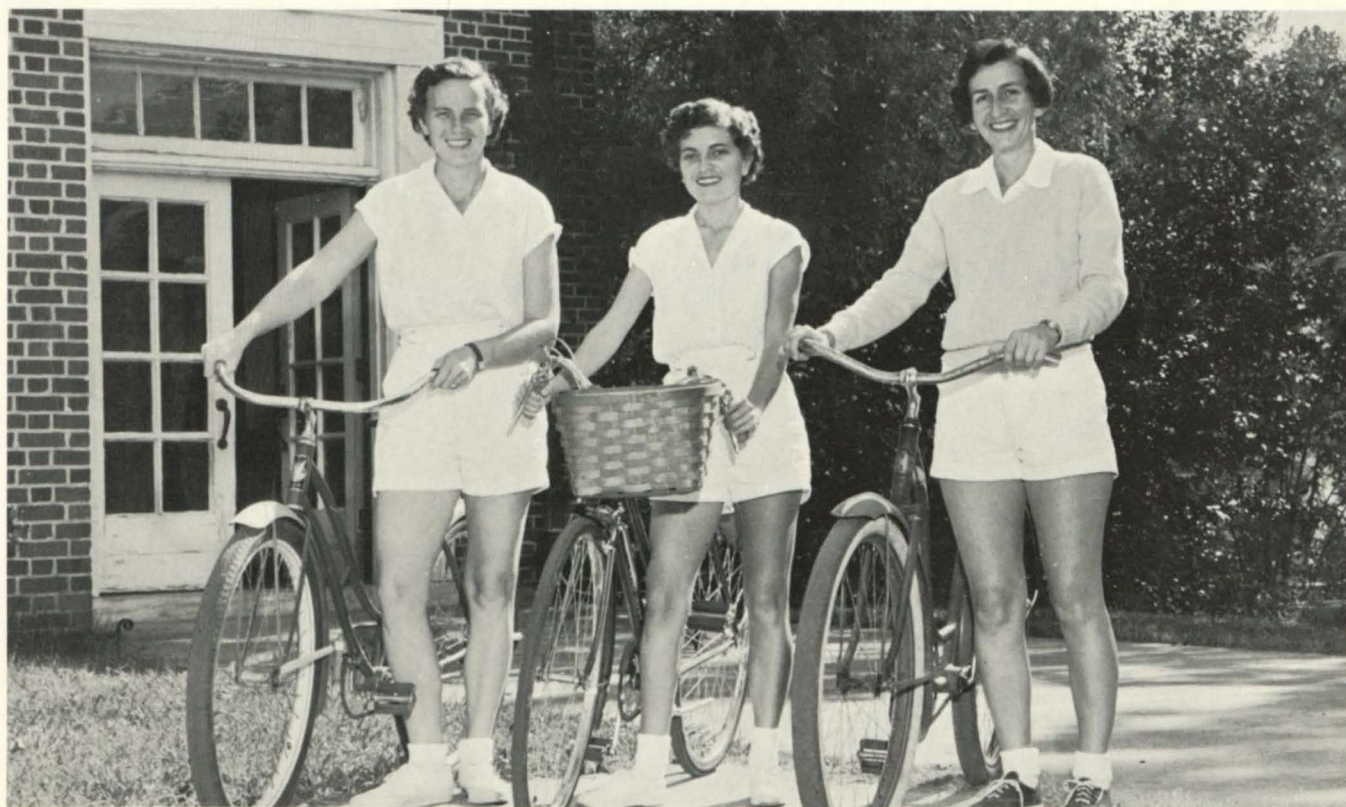

Left: Rehearsing for a chapel program are members of the Music Department with Mrs. Jelks accompanying Miss McGarrity.

Faculty

Right: The Drama Department, Miss Pate, Miss Simonson, and Mr. Samsen, plan the lighting for the next play.

Below: Miss Upshaw, Miss Pritchett, and Miss Hardin of the Physical Education Department apparently enjoy waiting for the girls they are about to take on a bicycle trip.

Faculty

Left: Dr. Sherriff and Miss Shiver of the History Department map out an I.R.C. program.

Below: Mr. Herrington, Miss McKinnon, and Mr. O'Steen of the Music Department apparently enjoy six hands at one piano!

Faculty

Above: Miss McBee, Miss Davis, and Mr. Metro of the Physics, Mathematics, and Chemistry Departments appear to find work a pleasure as they prepare to perform an experiment.

Right: Coming down the steps of the Fine Arts Building on their way to lunch are Miss Lane, Miss Pinkston, and Miss Suhs of the Music Department.

Faculty

Above: Mr. Zorin, Dr. Schmoll, and Mr. McLean—all of the Music Department—check over the music for the Fine Arts Festival.

Left: Dr. Bledsoe of the Education Department shows a new book to Dr. Murdoch of the Psychology Department while Mr. Beckman, also of the Education Department, chooses another one from the many stacks on the floor.

Faculty

Right: The rest of the English Department, Mr. Bennett, Miss Munck, and Dr. Gossett, once again are amused by another of Dr. Gin's priceless puns.

Below: Mr. Johnson, Dr. Hinson, and Dean Akers of the Religion and Philosophy Departments seem to be having a pleasant discussion about Religious Emphasis Week.

Faculty

Left: Miss Horsbrugh, Miss Broome, and Miss Kern of the Language Department pause outside before returning to the classroom after lunch.

Below: Gathering specimens for a Biology Lab are Miss Cowie, Doc Howell, and Miss Zillig—all members of the Biology Department.

Faculty

Above: It looks like a spear that Dr. Klemer is showing to Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Johnson—the other members of the Homemaking, Sociology, and Economics Departments.

Right: Mr. Foster, Mr. Zimmerman, and Mr. Villard of the Music Department pause between classes to chat on the porch of the Fine Arts Building.

Miss Senior Class

Joyce Bell

Senior Class Officers: Sally Neck, Secretary; Ann Carol Cochran, Treasurer; Joyce Bell, President; and Nan McClellan Flowers, Vice President.

Seniors

"Four long years we've labored . . ." As freshmen we labored to achieve unity as a class, during ratting, soccer, and stunt, for we wanted more than anything to be a part of Wesleyan. It was a big wide wonderful world to us then . . . all new, and all ours to discover. As sophomores we worked to keep the unity of our class as well as growing into the unity of the school as a whole. It was a hard year, full of epidemics and literature courses. Then we were juniors, discovering that no matter what unity existed, we still were and wanted to be individuals, expressing ourselves in our own individual way. We were in our major fields, beyond the reach of math and waiting impatiently to be seniors . . . individually unified under the red and white banner of the Tri-K Pirates. We have learned here; we have worked, we have labored, we have laughed, and we have cried. Now we graduate, and we shall use the knowledge gained here with assurance and confidence, as we pursue our individual goals with the courage that comes from a faith in ourselves—a faith learned at Wesleyan.

JULIETTE ADAMS

Winchester, Kentucky

Music Education

Chapel Choir 1, 2, 3; Dance Club 1, 2; Glee Club 1, 2, 3, 4; IRC 1; League of Women Voters 1; MENC 2, 3, 4; Orchestra 2, 3; Senate 4; Social Standards 3; Wesley Fellowship 3, President 4; "Y" Cabinet 3.

Small girl behind a large bass violin—a doer and not a hearer only—we remember Julie returning from a concert almost sophisticated as she walks in high heels and carries her elegant umbrella . . . And we remember her tired but determined heading toward the practice rooms—making announcements in chapel . . . unselfishly doing a thousand small favors. Lengthly and deliberate discussions about the problem of the day . . . boundless energy thrown headlong into a Stunt . . . the manufacture of a new dress for the evening or a special Valentine. She has expanded her horizons but never lowered her gaze.

Seniors . . .

EARLE BARNETTE

Macon, Georgia

Music Education

Orchestra 1, 2, 3, 4; MENC 1, 2, 3, 4.

Think of a sensitive, sincere musician—a kind, considerate individual—a smile and "Hello" as you cross the campus—a very brilliant mind—a wide grin of pride at the mention of his wife, Evelyn—a happy, jovial classmate; you're thinking of Earle. Whether he's composing music, acting silly in the pharm, or listening intently in class, he is aware of his fellow man, and never is he as depressed as when he hurts someone's feelings. All the potential for a splendid husband, successful music teacher—one who contributes greatly to all the lives he touches.

EMILY JOYCE BELL

Elberton, Georgia

Piano

Chorus 1, 2; Glee Club 1, 4; Homecoming Court 3, 4; Junior Marshal; Junior Class Vice President; Music Club 1; Orchestra 3; Senior Class President; Speech Club 4; Stunt Committee 4; Who's Who 4.

Capture grace, beauty, and the dignity of accomplishment in one form and you will have Joyce. We think of a beautifully modulated voice, elegant sophistication in the turn of the head—ceaseless surrender of self in the determination to rise above the mediocre; long hours of practice and discipline. Responsibility rests naturally in her hands and is discharged tactfully and graciously. The promise of ideal womanhood is hers as is our admiration in her achievement—Joyce.

Seniors . . .

BETTY JEAN BRABSTON

Newport, Tennessee

Piano

Chorus 1, 2; Dance Club 1; Fine Arts Club 3; May Court 3; Music Club 1; Orchestra 1, 2, 3, 4; Piano Soloist 4; Stunt Committee 4; Who's Who.

Could we think of "Beatrice" without remembering informal and unexpected "chats" as she planned her reactions. Campuses came Betty's way with no effort as she and her roommate created every bit of mischief that couldn't be found—droll remarks in that unmatched Tennessee drawl interspersing wild tales of hilarious adventure. We laughed as "Beatrice" struggled with the Freshman piano scales—passing then just before the Senior Recital; stood in awe as the artist performed; suffered when she was unhappy and lived for her perfectly timed wit. Somewhere along the way we discovered the hidden traits that won our love—sincere concern for us and our immediate problems of any size, willingness to do favors—confidence in asking them—the serious pursuit of life's ideal. We wish for Betty the future of her dreams.

ELIZABETH UNA BENDER

Macon, Georgia

English

AA 2; Dance Club 1; Day Students Club 1, 2, 3, President 4; IRC 3; Veterropt 4; "Y" Cabinet 3.

A small slip of a girl with dark brown hair and brown eyes to match . . . that's our Betty. Quietness and peace are the factors that pervade her life, soothing those of us who come in contact with her day by day. Easy going, never hurried, always calm and collected, Betty goes about her daily life with a smile for everyone she meets and a cheery word spoken where it's needed. She is strong in her silence . . . strong and persevering and constant in her ways. But there is a part of Betty that none of us will ever know, for she lives in a world of thought which is not of the common walks of life. Perhaps she sits on the edge of a cloud or uses the stars for stepping stones . . . but we will never know. Betty will smile her little smile and turn her eyes inward to the source of her great serenity, leaving us in wonder and in awe.

Seniors . . .

BETTY BRINSON

Columbus, Georgia

Sociology

AA 3, President 4; Basketball 3, 4; Dance Club 1; French Club 1; FTA 4; Naiads 1, 2, 3, 4; Senate 4; Senior Superlative; Soccer Team 3, 4; Sociology Club 1, 2, 3, President 4; Softball Team 3, 4; Splinter 1; Swimming Team 1, 2, 3, 4; Volleyball Team 1, 2, 3; "W" Club 4.

Betty is as much a part of Wesleyan as the soccer field on a crisp November afternoon or the fountain pattering endlessly in the court. We are sure she knows us as well as we know ourselves. Seldom was there a job to be done which was not made easier by Betty's generous help; seldom a project she wasn't the first to flood with enthusiasm. Abounding in energy, Betty puts us to shame with her hours of conscientious work in planning and executing. A friend to all, we shall miss her loyalty to class, ideals, and all that is Wesleyan.

CAROL KEA CARTER

Soperton, Georgia

English

Dance Club 2; FTA 2, 3, 4; Hiking Club 1, 2, 3; Homemaking Club 2, 3; IRC 1, 2, 3, 4; League of Women Voters 1, 2, 3, 4; Senate 3; Social Standards 3; Sociology Club 1, 2, 3; Spanish Club 1, 2, 3.

Crisply curling red hair . . . twinkling blue eyes . . . a mischievous grin . . . a yell up the hall, "Anyone for bridge?" . . . English novels read with amazing speed curled up on the couch in the study parlor . . . excited phrases about a long anticipated trip to Italy . . . scale-wide laughter over a joke or a hysterical situation (mostly hers) . . . a streak of the rebel, the individual . . . a mind of her own and know-how to use it . . . shortie pajamas with frills and lace . . . a love for beautiful things . . . a shadow of seriousness and a smile of abandon. These things are Carol . . . delightful, pleasurable, unforgettable.

RUTH WESLEY CHAPMAN

Forsyth, Georgia

Elementary Education

Basketball Team 3; Chorus 1, 2, 3; CGA 3, Vice President 4; Fine Arts Club 1; French Club 2; FTA 2, 3, 4; Glee Club 1, 2, 3; Homecoming Court 4; IRC 2; Junior Marshal; League of Women Voters 2; May Court 3; MSM 1, 2, 3, 4; Soccer Team 3, 4; "Y" Cabinet 2.

The incomparability of Ruth—whether it be side splitting mock-sermonizing of "Brother Chapman" or the simplicity of a well-timed question which ties the whole problem together. Moving like a stately shadow through our four years, somehow never receiving open acknowledgement for the goodness, the faith, the wonderful warm spirit we leaned on so—Ruth is the personification of quality . . . of all that is fine and noble in human nature. Truly a part of Wesleyan yet somehow belonging to other worlds our hearts will never know—Ruth.

Seniors . . .

ANN CAROL COCHRAN

Miami, Florida

Religious Education

Basketball Team 3; CGA 3; Glee Club 1; Quest Club 2, 3, President 4; Senate 3, 4; Senior Superlative; Senior Class Treasurer; Soccer Team 2, 3, 4.

Speaking of "fabulous," "the greatest," speaking in superlatives Ann Carol has us mastered. School day responsibilities are pinioned under a face-down clock as "Mother" takes a bit of recreation. There couldn't be a more unlikely clown. Take a pair of brown eyes sparkling above a neatly pressed and properly arranged blouse, disguise the figure in a yellow yarn wig and a mass of freckles, and you have—Ann Carol. Always on the go yet leaving plenty of time for a visit at any hour—a sympathetic ear, a receptive mind . . . a dedicated life.

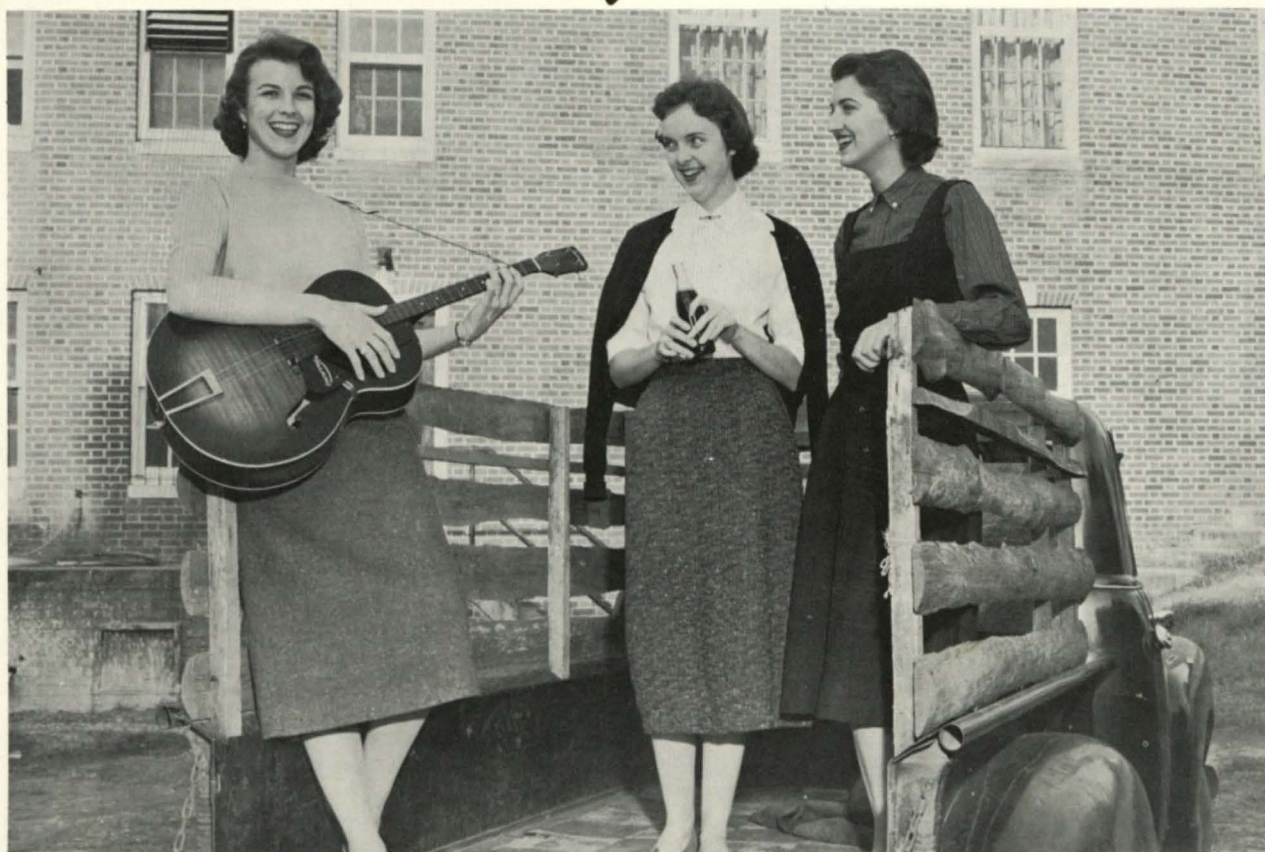

JIMMIE CLAIRE COPELAND Brunswick, Georgia
Art Education

Fine Arts Club 1, 2, 3, 4; FTA 4; Glee Club 1; Social Standards 4; Stunt Committee Chairman 3.

Jimmie is completely unpredictable, a non-conformist with a touch of the Bohemian which comes naturally. She's a laugh a minute with a captivating hold over any audience—an exuberant leader for the Washboard Band. Ask for versatility, unexplored creativity—respond with Jimmie . . . myopic brown eyes and flying auburn hair . . . urgent phone calls . . . hurried packing and rush week-ends—Jimmie, sleeping through class and playfully shocking the populace—a pattern of bright colors and soft borders.

JEAN GRIFFIN DENT

Ocilla, Georgia

Music Education

Chapel Choir 1, 2, 3; Glee Club 1, 3; MENC 2, 3, 4; Music Club 1; Orchestra 2, 3.

Jean in her quiet, dignified way, possesses a coveted ability to make people feel at ease; inspiring confidence by her genuine love and concern for others. She is always the same—serious in everything, whether her music, a Stunt rehearsal, or her home and family. Mrs. Dent makes us chuckle when we could have pampered ourselves with self-pity. Sincerity and humility are hers as naturally as the friendship they inspire.

Seniors . . .

CARLA FRANCES DUBOSE Laurens, South Carolina

Pre-Med

AA 1, 2, Vice President 3; Basketball 1, 4; Crucible Club 2, 3, 4; Soccer Team 1, 2, 3; Splinter 1; Senior Superlative.

Intense blue-gray eyes . . . wildly-curling dark hair . . . a smile like a Southern drawl . . . laughter down the hall . . . a wit reflected in a dry remark . . . a childlike delight in Pogo . . . a love for new clothes . . . an instinctive artistry in her feeling for the beautiful . . . satisfaction in work well-done . . . a willingness to take the challenge of "the hardest course on campus" . . . a devilish enjoyment in the fashions of Samoa while going for her bath . . . and a seriousness of mind and soul when occupied with the work she loves best. This is Frances, ever delightful, ever familiar, ever new.

ELIZABETH FIELD

Greenville, South Carolina

Physical Education

AA Treasurer 4; Basketball Team 1, 2, 3, 4; French Club 1; FTA 4; Senate 4; Soccer Team 1, 2, 3, 4; Senior Superlative; Splinter 1; Swimming Team 3, 4; Tennis Club 2, 3, 4; Volleyball Team 1, 3, 4; "W" Club 1, 2, 3, 4.

Enthusiasm for life is Liz's greatest virtue. She loves people; she loves the whole wide world. Amiable, friendly, with an unequalled zest for living . . . she always has enough time in her busy schedule for raising tropical fish, discussing the merits of different breeds of dogs, lifeguarding at the pool for an afternoon, or challenging some poor unfortunate to a sizzling game of tennis. A great believer in the more comic side of life, Liz never takes herself or others too seriously. She is always willing to turn a minor tragedy into a laughable comedy by some appropriate remark or by a grin that turns into a chuckle or spreads infectiously into a hearty laugh. But Liz has her more serious side, too . . . a quiet turn of character which loves the peace of late afternoons, music, or long talks with her friends. Liz is capable, she is kind, she is a person we'll never forget.

MARY EXA FORD

Luverne, Alabama

History

French Club 2; IRC 4; League of Women Voters 4; Spanish Club 1.

Clear blue eyes set in a fair complexion framed by soft brown hair—that's Mary Exa. Poetically sensitive to life around her and fresh as a flower in spring, she seems reserved, serious, and aloof, but to her close friends she is vibrant, alert, humorous and unpredictable. We remember her early morning packing when off to Luverne, her independence, fighting Tri-K spirit, and her true faithfulness to Wesleyan. We remember . . . with deepest admiration.

Seniors . . .

NORMA CLAUDIA FORD

Ft. Pierce, Florida

Elementary Education

French Club 1, 2; FTA 3, 4; Junior Marshal 3; Senate 3; Stunt Committee 4; Town and Country 4; Veterropt Business Manager 4.

A tiny frame encompasses large thoughts and a big heart . . . Norma, pleasant and usually mild has filled an important spot in our four years as she casually, but efficiently, goes about her business—whether it be as business manager of the Veterropt, or simply to class. Norma is full of surprises—a "blue moon" word spoken before breakfast or a sudden chuckle over some subtle, private joke. We remember Norma so excited after the Senior Stunt that she talked incessantly. Yet—over all a calmness—a standard for high scholarship and achievement constantly maintained. A true friend to those who know and love her, our college years have been made richer for having known Norma.

MARGARET GUNNELS
Art Education

Macon, Georgia

Day Students Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Fine Arts Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Junior Marshal; League of Women Voters 2.

A strawberry blond with serious green eyes, our Maggie works with her heart as well as her soul. She works for hours in the ceramics room, coated with clay, shaping and molding . . . creating from the vein of life itself. She paints a canvas and we wonder at her depth. Laughter paints itself in yellows . . . dry sarcasm flows in reds. Changing swiftly as the varied changes of season are the moods which influence her life from day to day . . . flowing upward from the genesis of Idea . . . moving . . . forever evolving in the shadowy realm of her mind. And constantly she searches for a dream . . . a harmony . . . a perfection that lies within the reach of her artist's hands . . . audible, visible only to her own sensitivity and intuitive wisdom.

Class of '57

SYLVIA HARTMAN
Speech Education

Reynolds, Georgia

Glee Club 1; May Court 3; Speech Club 1, 2, 3, President 4.

Sylvia's own special gift is the subtly confiding and extremely dry wit that gives itself away in the crinkles at the corners of her eyes. Otherwise she is the classic beauty encompassing all the virtues of grace, elegant expression and dignity—all rarely found. Happily and practically stage struck with the flair for portraying character tempered by hard work and "know-how" she is a never-ending source of delight. Most helpfully sharing—tidbits of advice, original or passed on—imaginative ideas—an unassuming word on the question at hand drawn from an enviable store of knowledge and never forced . . . an unfailing pleasure to be near.

Seniors . . .

MARIA SALTER HIGGINS
Sociology

Macon, Georgia

Basketball 3; FTA 3, 4; Junior Marshal; IRC 1, 2, 3, 4; League of Women Voters 1, 2, 3, 4; Naiads 2, 3, 4; Soccer 3; Sociology Club 3, 4; Swimming 3; Veterropt 4.

"And I said to myself, 'Myself' . . ." off we go again on an endless narrative of hilarious adventure as seen through the enormous blue eyes of our "Maree." Never was there such a bundle of independence wrapped up in a fun loving manner that won't sit still. Not to be intimidated, she voices her opinions—always well thought-out, unfailingly practical. Perfectly at home in any group, adding something that only Maria can give, she holds a very special place in our memories of Wesleyan.

EMILY HODGES

Painting and Ceramics

Milledgeville, Georgia

AA 4; Dance Club 3, 4; Fine Arts Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Glee Club 1, 4; Homecoming Queen 4; Stunt Committee Chairman 4; May Court 4.

When Emily is around there are certain things you can expect: poise, out-going graciousness, neat sophistication, and a well-organized state of existence that is rare and unequalled in her colleagues. Emily is the artist creatively displayed through the medium of oil and tempera—humorously effected in the spirited working of mind and colorful imagination. Within the self-appointed cool exterior dwells a spark of temperament that amazes you, for you never suspected it was there. In Emily we find a friend who is willing to share good times and bad—a wit that is contagious and springs into being saving a trying day—a studied look and a careful manner. Life will be good to Emily—she'll make it so.

NANCY ANN HOWARD

Hollywood, Florida

Biology

Basketball 2, 3, 4; Crucible Club 2, 3, 4; Fine Arts Club 3; French Club 1; FTA 4; Glee Club 1; Junior Marshal; League of Women Voters 1, 2; Naiads 1, 2; Orchestra 2; Quest Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Soccer Team 1, 2, 3, Captain 4; Senior Superlative 4; Spanish Club 3; Stunt Committee 3; Swimming Team 1, 2, 3, 4; Town and Country 1; "W" Club 2, 3, 4; "Y" Cabinet 2, Vice President 3.

"Footsteps . . . comin' down the hall"—couldn't be anyone but Nancy, off on one of her famous fantasies, accompanied by the proper amount of mad humor always followed by unrestrained laughter. Nancy—as a Freshman leaning out of third floor Person's provoking Green Knights wrath with her robust "Go Tri-K" . . . Dragging in late to dinner clad in a white lab coat . . . blissfully quoting Winnie the Pooh to the hilarious consternation of her listeners—one of the few souls to climb the water tower to hoist the Tri-K banner at Homecoming. Letters from Miss Carnes complete with droll faces and well-timed pauses—an indescribable soccer kick-off—chats with dining room "people"—a million and one antics typical of Nancy. A madcap miscreant with the instinctive balance, the depth, the deep-rooted and living faith to create a legend which she has almost become—enviably distinct from the crowds—unique.

Seniors . . .

TRUE LEE MEYER KELLY

Dance Club 1; Fine Arts Club 1, 2, 3, President 4; FTA 3, 4; Senate 4; Social Standards 1; Swimming Team 3; Veterropt 3; "Y" Cabinet 2, 3.

In True the virtue of being conscientious is innate. The early college days saw her awake and studying at 6 A.M.—slaving over a lettering project or "posterizing" for campus publicity. We think her shy—charmingly so, and sense a balance in her way between gentleness and unyielding determination. True is a series of magic doors as in Alice in Wonderland—we are treated to the beautiful surprises which she, like Alice, has worked to achieve. Of self expression in the fine arts—in the dance—in myriad small ways which hint at a depth of feeling and sensitivity we would inquire, but a diminutive and piquant smile masks the answer.

DOROTHY JEAN LEWIS
Art Education

Marianna, Florida

Fine Arts Club 2, 3, 4; French Club 1; FTA 4.

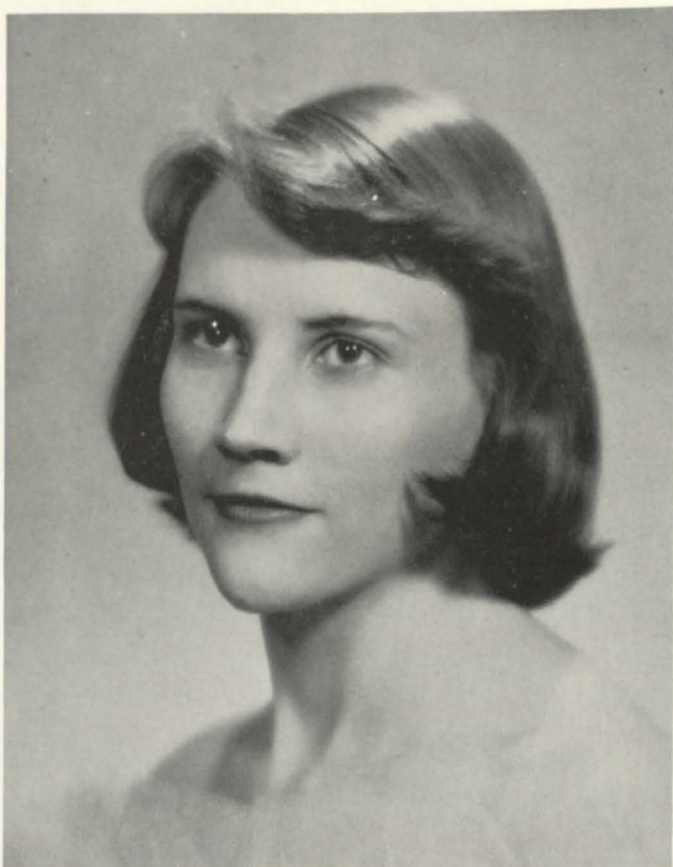

A droll remark . . . a second glance . . . and then a grin—that's Dot's approach to everything. Fun to know . . . good to tease. Think of studies forgotten in the mad enthusiasm for an experiment in Bohemian room decor—late hours and merry nonsense—See Dot crossing the campus with art materials tucked under at least one arm—long hours spent on a single project to achieve a perfect result—a job well done. Remember Dot efficiently supervising the installation of back drops for the Senior Stunt and realize that in her we find the happy combination of qualities we most admire.

And who was right there in the middle of every Tri-K activity? Who drove a familiar red convertible on every errand that was ever run? Who played her heart out in every game?—little doubt but Teenie. We saw her so often leading the excitement, but there were times—down by the lake—on the dorm steps—in the drowsy dawn before morning watch. As each facet of a compelling personality came to light—as we honored the student, followed the organizer—loved the friend—we realized the many happy visions of our Tri-K years mirrored in Teenie.

Seniors . . .

JANE TERRELL LOWE
American Studies

Maryville, Tennessee

Spanish Club 1; Sociology Club 3, 4; University of Florida 2.

Jane—a delicate beauty that springs from within—softly curling brown hair—sparkling blue eyes . . . a friend to everyone, generous with her time and always ready to give all that she can of herself—a dependable worker who knows how to do things and when—a constant source of Stunt laughter—playing her part with a hysterical solemnity not too far removed from her approach to everything—a complete giving of self in all-out effort. This . . . with a light touch of feminine grace and charm . . . makes the Jane we will long remember.

Fencing Club 1, 3; Fine Arts Club 1, 3, 4; French Club 1, 3;
Speech Club 4; Town and Country 1, 3; University of Georgia 2.

"Joanie"—long blond hair—always at the height of happiness, bubbling over, or the depth of despair—never in-between—always going out . . . Joan always has problems, and consequently is always ready to listen to someone else's and sympathize. A versatility that reaches unbelievably limits and a natural lightness of spirit that covers her deeper side—to us she is a breath of Spring air that is always refreshing.

Douglas, Georgia

FTA 2, 3, President 4; Social Standards 4; Spanish Club 1; Town and Country Business Manager 4.

Easy going, quiet, sincere—this is the way we'll remember Marguerite. Always ready to help or listen she has a loyalty and serenity that is unquestionable. A rare opportunity gave us a chance to fathom that private world and draw out the unexplored phases of an endearing personality. After Christmas we noticed a sparkle on her finger to match the twinkle in her eyes—and we were happy. A look into the quiet suite reassured us that Marguerite was studying with the conscientious determination that brought results. Few possess what is calmly and unchangeably hers—the gift of goodness.

Wandering, but not lonely, on a cloud, Marce drifts gently through life—sometimes as warm as the sunfilled clouds over the lake, sometimes as solemn as the gray thunder-heads before the storm which never comes for her. We just get a glimpse of Marce now and then—surrounded by her own private reading-room world, or hurrying from the library at closing time to plan some "Y" activity. But on those rare occasions when she does take time to party, she really does it up right—cutting labs and classes helter-skelter to go on a shopping spree—or giggling 'til 3 A.M. at a milk and sardines party. A fit subject for a "tease" session—we joke at—and with Marce . . . never being quite certain that we have really known her.

A beautiful soprano voice—south Georgia drawl—twinkling brown eyes—an ear to ear smile—a whistle that fools even the birds themselves—endless energy—Pat. Whether it's kicking the soccer ball down the field, heading for the tennis or basketball court, "tootin'" her saxophone in the winning stunt, or singing for a crowd in the student lounge, she's a Tri-K always giving her all. When we think of Pat, we'll remember a heart as big as all out-doors and overflowing with love of life and music.

English

AA 3; Fencing Club 2, 3; Glee Club 1, 2; Junior Class Secretary; Senior Superlative; Senior Class Vice President; Veteropt 2, Associate Editor 3; Wesleyan 3, Editor 4.

Nan calls to mind our highest aspirations and dreams. Often we sense that her thoughts are a thousand miles away and her eyes are seeing other scenes—perhaps that handsome husband and the excitement of a Christmas wedding. A leaning toward the serious side of life yet an almost childish pleasure in the humorous . . . so much a part of Wesleyan life, slowly and methodically managing to manipulate all of her many duties and responsibilities, Nan lives her dreams and ideals, and makes us better for having shared them with us. Our Senior year saw too little of her.

A Dresden doll with a laugh like a "co'nfiel' dahky" . . . a delicately featured lass who gives herself completely to all that is the theatre . . . whether she is on stage as leading lady or back stage, her face streaked with dirt working "crew." The overwhelming desire to excel—the heights and depths of feeling and mood—moments of exhilaration, times of despair—and through it all a surrender to living—fully and completely. For fun, for getting a job done, for loving family and classmates, for thinking and for realizing dreams, this ole world goes 'round for Jean.

"Preacher"—in a constant state of wanting to go, or in process of returning from the movies—as regularly as the feature changes—widely known for "private consultations" with pals—blissfully cutting classes in favor of more engaging pursuits. "Gus"—learning to breathe after three years of struggle . . . A door flung open, a swaggering entrance, a resounding battle cry—"Where's the music?" . . . An artistically draped figure in the throes of intense relaxation—shoes on the bedspread—a playful possum with the giggle of a Disney dwarf. Roughly compounded in a magical mixture—"Preacher." When she is happy, she is on the "mountain top," and when she is depressed, no one could be sadder. As she sings all the precocious whimsy disappears and we are wistfully enthralled by a thrilling and God-given talent—a la Zorin. "Preacher," who acts everywhere but in acting class, treating her "veddy own personal self" to a sizable space in the annals of Tri-K lore.

English

East Tennessee State 1, 2, 3; Town and Country 4; Veterropt 4.

We said hello to Martha Moore, a tall dark girl with a Tennessee twang who looked so shy and serious. We said good-bye to Marthy who was so alive and in love with the world. And in between the meeting and the parting we learned to know . . . her letters from home, her "little boys" that she met and captivated, her pithy expressions that could come from no one else . . . We remember her "vile messes" and "Y'all, I'm just beside myself," and we wish she were beside us now.

What would we have done without Sarah Jane to make our Senior year the liveliest possible . . . a weekend express to Tech, cramming more into her overflowing activity calendar than we would dare to anticipate, and tempting catastrophe with a "well, girls, what'll we do now?" That eternal Kleenex—more phobia than fact—the bridge games . . . getting tickled at unheard of hours—the merry leader of a mischief band . . . sleeping sickness . . . the cherished "security pillow." An imp in essence with a core of warmest practicality and genuine good feeling—for us a warm spot in our college experience.

Our chosen leader because she is a natural one, Gretchen is a magical merging of all those qualities which make up Miss Wesleyan. Soft words from her contain a subtle but real force whose effectiveness brings results. She possesses a shyness which adds charm without loss of poise—a beauty that wells from within and increases the beauty that is without. Tall and stately, her presence has lent dignity and strength to our number, and without doubt will gain for her admiration and respect in any group.

Perfection in dress and appearance reflects the virtue of a well-ordered mind. Quietness and confidence are mirrored in the serenity of exquisite blue eyes. Discouragement is contained in the capacity of a soul big enough to accept and interpret life in perspective. Always a sanctuary for the classmate with a problem, always a smile of absolute confidence in those who doubt themselves . . . an angel in our midst—the elusive quality of genuine friendship captured in Martha Ann.

We could pick Joyce out of a crowd blindfolded by that laugh of hers. Seldom did a day pass without the strains of "Joyce Prater, telephone," floating down the hall to remind us how popular in every way this classmate is. Week-end trips to Chicago and to town were not infrequent upon the agenda. We laughed at Joyce for her genuine naivete did our hearts good; we laughed with her because we shared humor in a way that friendship inspires. She filled a jolly space in our four years and helped to make them complete.

A mellow voice with a cheery "Hello" and Emily greets us on her way to the practice rooms. Moving in and out and around us like a muted echo, Emily never tries to make others notice her. Instead she is delightfully content to live with her books and music which to her are endless sources of satisfaction. Sometimes, though, through the door of the suite we hear a gusty laugh and feel sure that it's Emily responding unreservedly to a joke; and not infrequently comes the call, "Emily—long distance—it's Savannah,"—bringing forth a crescendo of hurrying feet—followed by a breathless "Hello." We feel certain that much of the subtle goodness of Emily has gone unrealized in these four hurried years—yet of all her attributes we will remember—unpretentiousness combined with a warm heart and high ideals—making her the classmate we delighted in having under the Tri-K banner.

Strains of "Swan Lake" drift through the door and we enter to find Pont, surrounded by Lit books, term paper, and memories of Yellowstone, eagerly reading the newest edition of Pogo's adventures. She'll swish her yellow shock of hair and smile impishly as she passes you on the way to her "second home" to sort Veterropt pictures, arrange copy, and blissfully ignore publishers' deadlines. In class she bubbles over with enthusiastic new insights into the dullest of dull material. Teacher and student alike know a course can't possibly be boring when this endless source of the unexpected is present. She's a rare combination of energy assurance, and capability. We all loved Rosebud; even when we couldn't hide our smiles at all the catastrophes that forever beset this Tri-K, we acknowledged with amazement the capabilities that were hers alone. We teased and Shirley good-humoredly and obliviously took it. We pulled for that early wedding and felt like Don belonged to all of us. Common sight—Shirley, forever cleaning her spotless room—laboring over her letters and papers, worrying needlessly over projects that always came out perfect. The class beautician—first to begin dressing—the last to finish . . . the smell of hand lotion . . . the questions . . . the warm humor coloring our impressions of Shirley.

Faye is everywhere at once—her bobbing ponytail signaling departure on another merry adventure—for such is each day. With the appeal of a nursery rhyme heroine, she tripped through our four years at Wesleyan bringing sunshine with her. Full skirts and jingling bracelets remind us of Faye. Unforgettable trips to town in the "Black Bat" wondering if we'd make it back . . . memories of Rat Court and heiroglyphics—thoughts of Senior Stunt and "Razzle-Dazzle." Somehow we hear again the refrain of a well-loved childhood rhyme: "Rings on her fingers and bells on her toes—she shall make music wherever she goes," and we fondly think of Faye.

Take a dab of gay humor, a lilting laugh, a few quipped words spoken in a soft-voiced French . . . scenes of Paris, French artwork strewn along a wall and mix well with Belafonte recordings, Gaite Parisienne, and French art songs. Then blend with coffee perked at two or three in the morning, Chesterfields burning in odd ceramic ashtrays . . . and literature, just worlds of literature. This is our recipe for Nona. But Nona is quiet too . . . sometimes solemn, sometimes thoughtful . . . sometimes wistful and a little melancholy . . . like sitting alone with her typewriter in a deserted study parlor or watching the rain trace a wet finger down the window-pane. Stank is the coquette—the girl who smiles demurely and secretively behind warm blue eyes, and the one who bubbles with joy and radiance and laughter. She loves the bright lights of the theatre, the rush of the crowds, the excitement of drama with its many intricacies and complexities; and yet the mystery of quiet moments—the world of music, the beauty of an instant in time. She loves the here and now, and is one never to look back too long or into the future too wistfully. Susan is forever giving . . . to class, to friends, to little sisters, to all who need. Perhaps it's oranges sent from Florida, a small piece of well-meant advice, friendliness, hope, a smile, a soft-spoken word, or a bit of laughter for a rainy day. Hers is the gift of loving people . . . gently, kindly, and thoughtfully.

Carol is a series of contradictions. She is sophistication with freckles on her nose . . . intelligence with a back-hills twang in her voice. She insults us and we are complimented. She makes us doubt her sanity as she expounds all the way through dinner on the subject of "ready raw peeled potatoes," and then in casual dormitory debates brings us face to face with her clear and perceptive thinking. Carol is a common sense, feet-on-the-ground type person, and yet, she is a dreamer. She is the practical counsellor, the indignant defender of the misunderstood—a whimsical dabbler in romance. She is faithfulness, to the little church at the top of the hill—its Thursday night choir rehearsals—its Sunday school—its music. The more we know Carol and the goodness and kindness upon which her whole life is based, the more we respect and love her.

Enthusiastic interest in the world and its activities make Faye a genuine complement to any group. The society column of the Town and Country, the endless phone calls, the club work, and other duties fill her activity calendar. Jo is the feminine version of Puck. When she's happiest is when she's up to her ears in devilment. Her red hair flames redder . . . her blue eyes twinkle brighter . . . the corners of her mouth turn up higher . . . and she laughs that piercing half laugh, half scream that can be heard for a ten mile radius. And then begins her repertoire of sounds and noises that Gerald McBoingboing would envy. But there's another side to the coin. Jo is not all clown. She is a sensitive artist with the voice of a lark singing at sunset . . . the ear for a lovely melody . . . the eye for patterns and color . . . the hands to mold clay into shape and the soul to create a masterpiece. She is both serious and gay . . . both bright colors and soft . . . with undertones of the warmth of an open heart.

Almost lost in a clutter of yellow second sheets, green ink, teapots, coffee cups, and gallon jars of sugar, a small figure sits cross-legged on the bed, copying poetry. We are met by appraising, but not unfriendly eyes, and are not quite sure what to expect, for Charlye is a series of moods. Today she may launch forth on some fantastic tale that leaves us gasping and weak from laughing so hard; or she may flabbergast us with a remark offered in unabashed frankness. Sometimes she will just sit quietly, dreamily considering patterns of smoke rising slowly in the still air, listening to us, or talking calmly with us about life, and living, and dying. As she speaks, we realize that what we see of Charlye is only a reflection, and that, no matter how long or well we know her, we can never enter the private world which belongs to C. Wiggins.

Harriette—who can wear her hair a million ways and does so—aside pony tail or a Siamese bun. Harriette with her courage and concern for others, spending much of her time working tirelessly for the March of Dimes . . . the student striving to do her best and usually succeeding . . . the downright "torchy" voice colored by a flair for the dramatic. Playing the "school marm" with a tender concern for her brood, Barbara is also concerned with life. A listening ear, a suggestion in a quiet voice—we are amazed at the ease with which she unravelled our Gordian Knots, leading us to the answers rather than giving them to us. She is always a quiet leader—there when most needed and least expected. She catches us off guard with her subtle humor when from a less perceptive person we would expect unhelpful platitudes. In two years we have learned the dependability, the sincerity, the conscientiousness which make us love Barbara.

Juniors

Each year has been different to the Purple Knights. But, perhaps, this year, our Junior year has been the most meaningful to us.

Our "charging" Royal Spirit united us as Freshmen through Rat Week; it carried us to victory in soccer; it brought us laughter through stunt. Our freshman enthusiasm brought us through unfamiliar territory.

We were no longer "the green freshmen" but Wesleyannes as we journeyed through our Sophomore year. Our number was less but our spirit rang true as talk turned to bugs! The Purple Knights proudly accepted the stunt cup for "Etymological Epic." Many sophomores struggled through it; we patronized the sun deck; we went to taps. Rings began to sparkle, pins became numerous, and by the end of our sophomore year we had but half the bewildered freshmen that had first passed through the gates of Wesleyan.

Our junior year brought us shades of green! Two hundred beloved freshmen became our little sisters. There was still the work and excitement of Homecoming. We had the Purple Knight pep through soccer, basketball, and stunt. Our spectrum both widened and deepened as we laughed over bridge games and discussed wedding plans. We knew we had found intangible and lasting friendships at Wesleyan among the Purple Knights.

Expectantly we waited for our class rings to arrive, and when they did we realized the white and purple was near its end. Our Purple Knight paths stretch from Formosa to Florida, and we of many hues blend as one to cheer under our P.K. banner. The winding paths have become a firm road—our Junior year.

It was the last year together for many of us—one to be lived to its fullest. Our Sophomore year overflows with memories . . . Saying "hello" after a summer of fun and work . . . Living in mighty Wortham . . . Having our very own sundeck . . . The times we sang as we watched the sunsets . . . The excitement and exhaustion of rat week . . . Getting to know and like the new Green Knights . . . The Halloween Banquet . . . High spirits when we won the soccer cup . . . Homecoming, and singing good-bye to our big sister Tri-K's . . . Engagements and marriages . . . Lit that so often looked like impassable barriers . . . Having our first party for our little sisters during high school week-end . . . The Christmas Banquet and caroling around our big tree . . . The kiddy party for our big sisters, and the wonder of the Christmas story at taps afterwards . . . Dead week and a new semester . . . Fresh starts . . . The night we read stunt, and all the laughter and urgency of the weeks before stunt night . . . Dates, house party week-ends . . . Finally, reminiscing over the year, saying good-bye, and the warm glow that two years together left in our Golden Hearts.

Miss Freshman Class

Martha Bell

Freshmen

On September 17, the doors of the college swung open, and the biggest Freshman Class in Wesleyan's history got its first taste of college life. After the mad rush of Orientation Week, we became official College Freshmen—the Green Knights. Three weeks of peaceful existence followed—but early one Monday morning, our short-lived peace was shattered. "Get up, Rats!" echoed through our dorm as mighty Sophomores crashed against our doors and stomped down our hall. Armed with clanking keys, helmets, and 59 Golden Hearts we paraded around campus Rat Day eating square meals and playing Air Raid and Rigor Mortis. Rat Court scared us all out of our wits, but it was only after that experience that we felt really a part of Wesleyan. Soccer was the next big thing on our agenda. Although we didn't win the cup, we learned the true meaning of class spirit. Dorm Weekend arrived and we hustled over the campus showing future Tri-K's around—trying to give them a glimpse of Wesleyan. Then came Christmas and our first long holiday—followed by semester exams, Reading Day, and Dead Week! On the heels of exams came Freshman term papers—and more work. Stunt Night was Wesleyan's next big event. For weeks before, work on backdrops, costumes, and props went on behind the newspaper covered doors of Persons' study parlors. With Spring, we all moved out-doors and spent hours by the lake and on the sun decks . . . Then June and we bade good-bye to the friends we made this eventful first year in college. But with the farewells came anticipations of more years ahead of us as wonderful as our first.

Go, Green Knights!

There are other things besides classes and books that make up a school year—and although every year finds Rat Day, Homecoming, Christmas, and Stunt Night on its calendar, each year the same events take a different twist—adding their own special flavor to the days. Here are some of the events that made the school year '56-'57 a memorable one.

A Word of Thanks

The editor of this annual wishes to thank all those who have made this 1957 Veterropt possible. Special mention should go to Mr. Al Rasche of the Taylor Publishing Company for his patience and understanding, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pharr for their advice and assistance with the pictures, and to the members of the Veterropt staff who have co-operated with the editor. The editor also wishes to express appreciation to Dr. Gossett, the faculty advisor, and to Dr. Gin for his words of encouragment. Above all the editor wishes to thank the Wesleyan student body for its interest and concern in this endeavor.
